About Us

Giap Nguyen founded Straight to the Point Archery in 2005 after becoming dissatisfied with the local archery education options in Tacoma for his three children. A skilled archer who competed with the U.S. Archery Team in the 2000 Summer Olympics, Nguyen's business grew significantly following the release of The Hunger Games series, which sparked a rise in archery interest, especially among young women.

Straight to the Point Archery is a nonprofit archery education center offering top-notch training and coaching. The facility features 28 shooting lanes, private coaching rooms, and access to additional lanes and an outdoor field. Catering to all skill levels, from beginners to professionals, they provide lessons, private classes, and various programs like youth events, corporate parties, and homeschool offerings. Their certified instructors are experts in both traditional and modern archery, teaching in a positive environment. The center maintains strong connections with major archery organizations, ensuring quality education and safety.
